Claim Strategy: Same Claim, Different Words

Task: How many ways can you think of to articulate your claim?

Instructions:

1. Jot down the claim for your argument here:

2. Set a timer for 10 minutes. Brainstorm as many different ways to say that claim as you can. The idea won't change, but the words will.

   You might think about:

- How would I communicate the same idea in a different order?
- How might I alter my word choice to have the same meaning, but sound a little bit different?
- How could I vary my sentence length and structure to communicate the same idea with a different effect?

Now, where can you place these restatements of your claim in your piece of argument writing?
